

Click to verify

Pace academy tuition atlanta

Pace Academy's expansion grades are Pre-First, grade six and grade nine. Openings in all other grades are based on attrition. Select the appropriate division below to learn more about the application process. To start the application process, please create an account in Ravenna. Upon completion, you will begin to receive email notifications from Ravenna regarding upcoming admissions events and deadlines. Required Supplemental Materials Details for completing these steps are posted in Ravenna. Joint Admission Testing Process (JATP) Report Card (Grades 1-5 only) Teacher Evaluations Principal/Counselor Evaluation (Grade 5 only) Pace Academy Observation Family Statement Deadlines Application: Due Feb. 1, 2025 All Supplemental Materials: Due Feb. 15, 2025 To start the application process, please create an account in Ravenna. Upon completion, you will begin to receive email notifications from Ravenna regarding upcoming admissions events and deadlines. Required Supplemental Materials Details for completing these steps are posted in Ravenna. SSAT (Secondary School Admission Test) Scores Report Card Math Teacher Evaluation, English Teacher Evaluation and Principal/Counselor Evaluation Student Interview Family Statement Deadlines Application: Due Feb. 1, 2025 All Supplemental Materials: Due Feb. 15, 2025 To start the application process, please create an account in Ravenna. Upon completion, you will begin to receive email notifications from Ravenna regarding upcoming admissions events and deadlines. Required Supplemental Materials Details for completing these steps are posted in Ravenna. SSAT (Secondary School Admission Test) Scores Report Card Math Teacher Evaluation, English Teacher Evaluation and Principal/Counselor Evaluation Student Interview Student Essay Family Statement Deadlines Application: Due Feb. 1, 2025 All Supplemental Materials: Due Feb. 15, 2025 Clarity, our impartial financial aid partner, evaluates a variety of factors beyond income, such as assets, family size and other dependents. This holistic approach helps us determine a family's true financial need. What sets Pace apart is our unwavering commitment to meeting 100% of a family's demonstrated financial need. We believe a Pace education should be accessible to all qualified students, regardless of financial circumstances. Pace is need-blind in admissions. Your child's academic qualifications are considered separately from their financial situation. Only after an applicant has been deemed qualified for admission does a separate and smaller Financial Aid Committee determine that student's financial aid grant. Awards are granted annually and cover tuition and additional expenses like books, arts, athletics, Isdell Center for Global Leadership study tours and technology. DIVISION GRADES COST LOWER SCHOOL PRE-FIRST THROUGH FIFTH GRADE $35,580 MIDDLE & UPPER SCHOOL SIXTH THROUGH 12TH GRADE $40,970 Tuition costs at Pace include lunch, school accident insurance, science and computer lab fees, school publications and academic extracurricular field trips (with one or two exceptions). In Pre-First through fifth grade, books are included in tuition; in grades six through 12, books are an additional cost. Other items such as school supplies, art and photography fees, and PE uniforms are extra and are purchased separately by the student. Our commitment to striving for excellence in all that we do means that the cost of attendance exceeds tuition. Additional charges and fees, which we refer to as non-tuition essentials, are dependent on your child's activities, grade level and classes. Every family qualifying for need-based aid is eligible to receive a percentage discount for non-tuition essentials, which is based on the amount of tuition-based assistance the family receives. For an estimate of the range of costs for these non-tuition essentials by division please see below. GRADE LEVEL FEE FEE INCLUDES Lower School (Pre-First through fifth grade) $100-$500* Class dues Fifth-grade trip Middle School (sixth through eighth grade) $1,300-$2,000 Textbooks Class dues Class trip PE uniforms Dress uniforms Athletics and art fees Upper School (ninth through 12th grade) $1,600-$2,500 Textbooks Graduation fee Class trips Dress uniforms Athletics fees Art fees AP Exams In the Lower School, we offer optional Knight Crew after-school care. The rates are as follows: KNIGHT CREW AFTER-SCHOOL CARE PROGRAM MONTHLY COST DROP-IN COST Pre-First (2:15 - 3:30 p.m.) $100 per month $25 per session First grade through Fifth Grade (3:30-6 p.m.) $250 per month $35 per session *This pricing applies to Pre-First students staying past 3:30 p.m. In the Middle and Upper Schools, students are invited to participate in optional Isdell Center for Global Leadership (ICGL) study tours. The Pace Parents Club's Citizens of the World Travel Grant covers airfare for these trips once in Middle School and once in Upper School; families are asked to contribute the remainder of the cost, which ranges from $2,000 to $3,500 for Middle School students and $1,800 to $3,500 for Upper School students. To begin, please create an account via Clarity. Application: Start by clicking on Clarity Tuition, creating your account and following the instructions carefully. 2023 Federal Income Tax Return(s) (1040) and 2023 W-2s: The IRS will transfer these documents directly to Clarity once the application is complete. If your child has filed a federal tax return, please upload the full and accepted return. 2024 W-2(s): Employers are required to provide 2024 W-2 forms to their employees by Jan. 31, 2025. Once you receive your W-2s, please upload copies of your 2024 W-2 (or 1099s) to the Clarity application as soon as possible. Additional information (if necessary): Include any other relevant financial information in a separate written statement and upload it to your Clarity account. New/Prospective Families: Submit your completed application via Clarity by Feb. 15, 2025. Returning Families: Submit your completed application via Clarity by Dec. 15, 2024. All families: upload your 2024 W2s/1099s by Feb. 15, 2025. Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format for any purpose, even commercially. Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially. The licensor cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the license terms. Attribution — You must give appropriate credit . provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made . You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use. ShareAlike — If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. No additional restrictions — You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits. You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation . No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material. We've detected that JavaScript is disabled in this browser. Please enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using x.com. You can see a list of supported browsers in our Help Center. Help Center View more schools in the Atlanta area: A. Philip Randolph Elementary School A. Philip Randolph Elementary School, in Atlanta, GA, empowers young minds to explore, learn, and grow, fostering a love for lifelong learning and character development. Atlanta Girls' School Atlanta Girls' School, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Atlanta International School Atlanta International School, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Atlanta Virtual Academy The Atlanta Virtual Academy (AVA) Part Time program is a fully accredited online learning environment that is available to middle and high school students of Atlanta Public Schools. Ben Franklin Academy Ben Franklin Academy, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Capstone Academy Capstone Academy, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Cobb Horizon High School Cobb Horizon High School, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Fusion Academy Buckhead Fusion Academy Buckhead, in Atlanta, GA, has a wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. Heritage Academy Elementary School Heritage Academy Elementary School, in Atlanta, GA, empowers young minds to explore, learn, and grow, fostering a love for lifelong learning and character development. Kimberly Elementary School Kimberly Elementary School, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff that empowers young minds to explore, learn, and grow, fostering a love for lifelong learning and character development. KIPP South Fulton Academy KIPP South Fulton Academy, in Atlanta, GA, prides itself on fostering a nurturing and inclusive environment where students can grow. Lakeside High School Lakeside High School, in Atlanta, GA, is renowned for its dedicated teaching staff and wide array of engaging extracurricular activities. What school am I zoned for? Home > Georgia > Fulton County > Atlanta > Buckhead Top Ranked GA SchoolGrades: Kindergarten-12Enrollment: 1,120 studentsYearly Tuition: $32,760Average class size: 13 studentsApplication Deadline: Feb. 15Source: Verified school update Total Students1,120 students% Students of ColorStudents by Grade Total Classroom Teachers136 teachersStudent : Teacher Ratio% Faculty w/Advanced DegreeAverage Class Size13 studentsNumber of AP Courses23 coursesAdvanced CoursesArt History, Biology, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Chemistry, Comparative Government and Politics, Computer Science A, Computer Science Principles, English Language and Composition, English Literature and Composition, Environmental Science, European History, French Language and Culture, Latin, Macroeconomics, Microeconomics, Music Theory, Physics 1, Physics C, Psychology, Spanish Language and Culture, Statistics, US History, World HistoryAverage ACT scoreMatriculation DataMatrix. DataClassroom Dress CodeCasualSchool ColorsWhite, Navy Blue, Columbia blueYearly Tuition Costs$2,760View national tuition avg: Tuition Notes$28,460 for grades Pre-First-five, $32,760 for grades six-12Admissions DirectorJennifer McCurranAdmissions AssociateHeather Bernes (Middle School) Total Sports Offered19 sportsSportsBaseball, Basketball, Cheering, Cross Country, Diving, Equestrian, Football, Golf, Gymnastics, Lacrosse, Mountain Biking, Soccer, Softball, Swimming, Tennis, Track and Field, Volleyball, Water Polo, WrestlingTotal ExtracurricularsTotal Extra-curric.29 extracurricularsExtracurricularsExtra-curric.Founded in 1958, Pace Academy, educates 1,110 students in grades Pre-First through 12. The average Upper School class size is 13, and the average whole-school student teacher ratio is 9:1. The faculty averages 16 years of teaching experience, nine years at Pace. Pace was one of Atlanta's first schools to integrate community engagement into the curriculum and make it a graduation requirement. In 2014, Pace Academy launched the Isdell Center for Global Leadership (ICGL), which provides a global education for every graduate.Source: Verified school update How much does Pace Academy cost?Pace Academy's tuition is approximately $32,760 for private students. What schools are Pace Academy often compared to? What sports does Pace Academy offer?Pace Academy offers 19 interscholastic sports: Baseball, Basketball, Cheering, Cross Country, Diving, Equestrian, Football, Golf, Gymnastics, Lacrosse, Mountain Biking, Soccer, Softball, Swimming, Tennis, Track and Field, Volleyball, Water Polo and Wrestling. Pace Academy is ranked as one of the top 20% of private schools in Georgia for most sports offered. What is Pace Academy's ranking? When is the application deadline for Pace Academy?The application deadline for Pace Academy is Feb. 1. In what neighborhood is Pace Academy located?Pace Academy is located in the Buckhead neighborhood of Atlanta, GA. There are 13 other private schools located in Buckhead. 5 4/25/2025Pace prepared me extremely well for college and later life. The individual attention that I received from my teachers was unparalleled, and when I reached college it was clear how well Pace prepared me compared with other students. Pace teaches critical thinking and effective communication, which set me up for success. In college, I was more than prepared for the work, and had been taught how to effectively write essays, use critical thinking, be open to new ideas and otherwise learn. Pace's size meant I knew everyone and our class was generally very close with one another. Starting from this level has continued to be to my advantage when working after school, going to graduate school and in my career. I can consistently point to the training I received at Pace as a major piece of why I am successful to this day. I recommend Pace to anyone considering a top private school in Atlanta. - Posted by Student/Alumni - WLAEndorse Pace Academy. Endorsements should be a few sentences in length. Please include any comments on Quality of academic programs, teachers, and facilitiesAvailability of music, art, sports and other extracurricular activitiesAcademic or athletic awards May 13, 2025 5 Reasons You Might Be Looking At The Wrong SchoolsMany parents unknowingly focus on the wrong criteria when selecting a school for their child. This article highlights five common mistakes families make when evaluating schools and offers practical advice to help them refocus on what truly matters. From academic fit to school culture, learn how to make the best choice for your child's future. April 19, 2025 Pre-AP, PSAT/NMSQT, BlueBook, and MoreThis article explains the College Board's programs designed to prepare middle and high school students for the SAT. It covers Pre-AP courses, and the PSAT Suite of Assessments, highlighting how these programs use technology to enhance learning. April 18, 2025 Independent Schools in AfricaDiscover Africa's vibrant international education landscape with our comprehensive guide to private K-12 schools across the continent. From British and American curricula to French, German, and niche language programs, explore how expat families can find world-class education tailored to their needs. Learn about boarding and day schools in South Africa, Tunisia, Morocco, Egypt, and beyond. Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format for any purpose, even commercially. Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially. The licensor cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the license terms. Attribution — You must give appropriate credit . provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made . You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use. ShareAlike — If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. No additional restrictions — You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits. You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation . No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material. Class of 2002 Alumna, Parent, Problem Solver A member of the Class of 2002, Genna wears many hats within the Pace community—two of which are alumna and parent. “The soul of the school is the same as when I was here as a student, but simultaneously, it has evolved into a more dynamic, modern and global community,” she reflects. “As an alumni-parent, I’m really impressed with how the school takes into account its past and its present, and focuses on its future.” When considering schools for her children, some of the things Genna loved most about Pace as a student became what attracted her as a prospective parent. “What sets Pace apart is the authentic warmth here —we felt like we could bring our real selves to this community. The genuineness may be intangible, but it is very real, and not easily found anywhere else.” Watching the decision come to fruition in her children’s Pace journeys, Genna feels confident that Pace was the right choice. “We’ve seen [our daughter] become a more whole version of herself here,” she says. “The academic growth is the foundation, but socially and emotionally, too, the school goes above and beyond to support the whole student. She has gotten to explore so many things that light her up.” “Pace was instrumental in my understanding of problem solving,” Genna reflects. “This environment taught me that there’s no problem you can’t solve, and with that hard work, grit and determination, you can overcome anything—and that’s inherent to the experience of being a Pace Knight. More than anywhere else, Pace gave me a sense of bravery, I learned to challenge myself and the status quo while I was here and that helped me forge my own path personally and professionally.” Class of 2030 Student, Artist, Community Builder Since joining the Pace Lower School, Dean has become an immediate fixture in the Pace community. His teachers will tell you that he is a kind leader, a good friend and an expressive artist. He will tell you in response that his teachers are helpful, courteous and passionate, that despite daunting academics, Pace teachers answer every question you have. “By the end of a year at Pace, students look back and realize how prepared they are, how much they’ve learned, and that their teachers were there, every step of the way,” he says. From Lower to Middle School, Dean has been a Knights of the Arts laureate, a student council representative, an actor and singer and a robotics programmer—and he’s only just getting started. “I really like art—from visual art to music and acting—and Pace lets you explore your passions. In art class, it’s not just painting and colored pencils. We get to learn about and experiment with every different type of art and medium.” In addition to his artistic endeavors, Dean is passionate about making things fair and making sure everyone’s heard. To new Knights, Dean’s advice is this: “You might feel out of place at first, but never for long. Just jump into the community; teachers and students alike make sure that everyone here feels welcome and comfortable.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now in her sixth year at Pace, Mrs. Grant helps set the tone for our first graders. “I want my students to develop a growth mindset, so we don’t say, ‘I can’t do that,’ we say, ‘I can’t do that yet.’ They need to be problem-solvers, because if you can solve problems, you can learn your way around the world.” She fosters that growth mindset by ensuring that each of her students feels accepted, safe and special in her classroom. A sign on her door reads Everyone belongs. “I want everyone to feel accepted and safe here,” Mrs. Grant says. “I want my students to feel seen and heard and to know that they play important roles in building a community in which everyone feels welcome. That’s the most important thing. I want them to be good people.” First-Grade Homeroom Teacher Now