credit card. If you find the Singapore driving license of someone who has lost it, then report it instantly to the police station. The Singapore driving license is an important document that all residents must possess in order to drive vehicles freely. To avoid them, you need to apply quickly online for a replacement license at the designated e-service. You will receive your new replacement within a week of application. First, you have to apply for a Provisional Driving License (PDL) before you can start learning to drive on the roads of Singapore. The loss of Singapore Driving license can create problems for you. Also, you can contact us and report the lost Singapore driving license that you've found. If you have lost the Singapore driving license, and you are a Singapore citizen and permanent resident, you can apply for a replacement license by logging with your SingPass account at the e-service or through the Police at SG mobile application. Foreigners needing a replacement license have to go to the TP (Traffic Police) headquarters. The solution for you is to apply for a replacement driving license online using the authorized e-service. There is no penalty if you lose your Singapore driving license. Those who are found guilty driving without a license will have to pay a fine of S$ 5000 or a jail term for three months. What I Should Do if I Lose My Singapore Driving License? Singaporeans who are overseas can apply for a replacement license through proxy by issuing a written authorization to their relatives in Singapore. A Singapore driving license is an essential document that is required to drive two-wheelers and four-wheeler vehicles on the roads of Singapore. You will get a replacement license within seven days of application. There is a queue ticket system (take a number and wait to be called), and once the formalities have been carried out the licence is sent by post to the applicant's address.The following documents are required when applying for a replacement: One passport size photograph (matt/semi matt on a white background) Passport, work pass, residence pass or NRIC (National Registration Identity Card)There is a fee for the replacement licence, which can be paid by Cashcard or NETS only.A Police Report is also required if the person is applying for a third and any subsequent replacement. For that, you have to apply online after passing the driving test using your SingPass account (used for transactions with government agencies in Singapore) via the e-service made for this purpose. Is There Any Penalty for the Loss of Singapore Driving License? We actually reward people who return lost driving license for their good deeds! Below are details on what to do if you need to replace or update your Singaporean driving licence if it is lost, stolen, damaged or if you have moved house or changed name.Information on converting a driving licence to a Singaporean one can be found on the Exchanging a Driving Licence page.How to Replace a Singapore LicenceA Singapore driver's licence must be replaced if it is lost, damaged, if the holder has changed from a foreign ID to a Singapore ID (permanent resident), or if there is a change in personal details (such as address or name).This can be done by going in person to the Traffic Police Headquarters, although a change of residential address can simply be carried out at a neighbourhood police post or Immigration and Checkpoints Authority (ICA). One of their tasks is to verify whether a foreigner who has lost his driving license has a valid student, visit, or work passes. What Will Happen if I Lose My Singapore Driving License? The relatives can apply for a replacement on their behalf at the Traffic Police Department, Singapore. It is also advisable to get photocopies of your license or take photos of it on your mobile. Find more information about replacing a driving licenceChanging an address on a driving licenceA Singapore driving licence must be updated with the new address details within 28 days after moving house.
