With a new SoundLink speaker, start by connecting it to the wall using a wall charger. It will blink blank when in the connection process, and a white light will appear when connected to a device. The Bluetooth light on the speaker will blink blue when you are ready to connect. On my devices, select Bose Soundlink on Android Devices: Go to Setup (press) Connected Devices > Connection preferences > Make sure the Bluetooth toggle switch is on / green. The placement of the Bluetooth icon varies from device to device, but not the same. Now try to pair your device with the speaker. These steps should work in the most current BOSE program of portable speakers, including: purchases made through some links from stores can provide some compensation for mad scientists' technologies. Now, try connecting your Bluetooth device to the Bose Soundlink speaker. If the above steps do not work, visit Bose product support for the most useful troubleshooting steps. Note: The above steps are included in the user manual for the product, however, the steps are located under the troubleshooting for the poor audio quality. Update: November 2012 If you have not tried the above steps, and your Bluetooth device still cannot connect to the Bose Soundlink Link, you may need to clear the Bluetooth pairing memory for the Bose Soundlink Speaker - on the device(s) you are not trying to pair the speaker with. For example, if you can't get the speaker to pair with your iPhone, you don't need to delete the pairing entry on the iPhone and re-pair the speaker to the iPhone. Since the number of devices that have Bluetooth features, the specific steps to erase or un-pair a device is out of the scope of this article. Update: flashing red battery light (January 2015) If your soundlink battery indicator base wireless link is blinking in red, this usually means that the battery has less than 20% load, or the battery is in battery power mode. As the speaker's battery is in battery power mode, to resolve these two issues, connect the Bose Soundlink speaker to the AC adapter for a minimum of 4 hours of continuous charging before attempting to use the speaker. However, in some cases, your SoundLink battery may be faulty or have reached the end of its useful life and would need to be replaced. Enable and pair your phone or tablet's Bluetooth settings: On iOS devices: Go to Setup (press) Bluetooth and make sure the Bluetooth toggle switch is turned on/green. Try resetting the speaker by following the steps below. To reset the Bose SoundLink speaker: On the speaker, hold down the Mute button for 10 to 12 seconds or until the LEDs indicate the speaker is flashing. Now, press the Power button to turn the speaker back on. Bose To pair a redefined factory speaker or to pair a second device to the Bluetooth speaker: Press and hold the Bluetooth icon on the speaker until the indicator light blinks blue. Thanks for letting us know! Tell us why! The Bluetooth speaker must enter the connect mode when first turned on. Almost all Bose SoundLink speakers use a similar method for all Bluetooth pairing. If you don't have a Bose SoundLink wireless speaker and have trouble connecting to a previous paired device or even connecting to the SoundLink speaker. On the speaker, press the power button. Hold down the Bluetooth button for 10 seconds until you hear the Bluetooth Device List Aoff A Go to Setup (press) Connected Devices > Connection preferences > tap the connected/green Bluetooth toggle button. If you have not tried the above tips times sometimes may want to contact Bose Technical Support for additional support. Update: September 29, 2018 - Soundlink Speakers without mute button - this has not been tested on real hardware. If you have a new Soundlink speaker that hasn't changed as described above, you can reset the list of paired devices on your SoundLink speaker by following the steps below. Note: This process will wipe all previously connected devices from the speaker's memory. It will flash blank when it is in the process of connecting and it will appear a solid blank when it is connected to a device. If you need to change the language, tap the Plus (+) and Minus (-) icons to move through the options. The speaker is now in pairing mode. Last updated in October 2019 When connected for the first time, SoundLink enters pairing mode. Pair with your phone using the usual pairing procedure for any device. For factory reset pair or second speaker, press/hold bluetooth icon until the light flashes To put the speaker in pairing mode, pair as usual. Tap Stop New Device > Select Bose Soundlink. Turn on and look like your phone's Bluetooth settings: On iOS devices: go to Settings > Bluetooth and tap the Toggle / Green Bluetooth button. If the power light is red, it needs to charge; if it is orange, the battery is half full; Green means the battery is full. This article shows how to connect a Bose SoundLink Bluetooth speaker to an iPhone or Android device. Delete or Forget the input to your device's speaker. Any previously connected devices will need to be re-paired with the speaker before they can work.
