Learn financial literacy by making a budget Make a budget of what you spend, save, and share. Time needed: 20-30 minutes Materials needed: Index cards Pens Paper Core Values and Values That Impact Spending handouts, one for each Cadette Setup: Volunteer shares: Your budget is more than just a way to track your money. Your spending habits reflect what you value. If you value socially responsible businesses, that's where you'll spend or invest your money. When you know what your core values are, it becomes clearer where to invest your money, time, energy, and resources. Activity: Give Cadettes (6th, 7th, and 8th graders) the Core Values and Values That Impact Spending handouts. Encourage group discussion about what's on the lists. Have them add more to the lists. Give each Cadette four index cards to write their top core values. On ten separate index cards, ask them to write what they'd purchase or do with imaginary money in a budget. These are their spending goals, which might include buying a new pair of sneakers, donating money to a certain charity, or saving up for a trip with their troop. Ask them to place their four value cards in a row. Under each, have them place their goals cards with the value they think it aligns with the most. Do their spending goals match the values they've identified? How would they change their budget goals now that they've identified their values? Troop Leaders: The instructions for all badge steps are available free of charge in the Girl Scout Volunteer Toolkit. Girl Scout Activity Zone activities have been adapted from existing Girl Scout programming. Adapted from Step 1 of the Cadette Budget Manager badge. Purchase the badge requirements to complete the steps and earn the badge Made possible by a generous grant from Charles Schwab. Time needed: 45-60 minutes Materials needed: Piece of cardboard, poster board or cover stock paper Magazines and newspapers Scissors Glue or tape Setup: Have you ever wondered what your life will be like when you are 20 or 30? What will your job be? Where will you live? The Financing My Dreams badge lets you explore, practice thinking about your future, and learn how much that future might cost. In this activity, you will explore your hobbies, interests, skills, and talents; learn about jobs related to your interests; and discover what those jobs pay. Activity: First you will create a vision board about your future. Cut out pictures and words from a magazine that represent you and your dreams. If you don't have any magazines, you can draw your vision, search online for images, or your vision board could be a mixture of drawing, writing, and collage. As you create your vision board, make sure you include some of your current hobbies, interests, skills, and talents. Now it's time to dig into your dream jobs. Do you have any interests, hobbies, skills, or talents that you could turn into a career? Make a list of possible jobs see if you can get at least 25 possibilities written down. You might need some help making your list. Look to books, TV, web sites, news, and other outlets for inspiration, or have your friends and family help you brainstorm a list of ideas. With the help of an adult, you can also connect with adults in your network learn about their job history. Once you have your list, pick your top five choices. Finally, search the internet to find a rough estimate of the salary and take-home pay for each job. Salary refers to how much money you will bring home each year and take-home pay is your salary minus taxes and other benefits like health insurance that you may pay for before getting paid yourself. Note: Girls, volunteers and families are encouraged to take the time and space they need to adjust to this period of rapid change and uncertainty. When they're ready, we're here to support Senior and Ambassador Girl Scouts to safely take action in their communities whether it's helping ensure kids are still getting the nourishment and enrichment they need out of school, responding to the possible ramifications of isolation during social distancing, adapting an existing project to positively impact local communities today, or something else entirely!
