Which is the correct form to use depends on the subject of your sentence. In this article, we'll explain the difference between do and does, cover when and how to use each form, and provide examples of how they're used in sentences. Do is an irregular verb, which means that it has different forms depending on tense and the subject it's being used with. Both do and does are used for the present tense. The form does is only used with third person singular subjects, such as the pronouns he, she, and it, as in She does yoga. The form do is used for all other subjects, including for first person (I and we) and second person pronouns (you) and the third person pronoun they (regardless of whether its singular or plural), as in I do yoga, but they do not. The past tense form of do is did, and the past participle form is done. do vs. does The verb do is considered an irregular verb because its past tense and past participle are not formed by adding -ed or -d to the end of the base form as is the case in most verbs. In fact, do has a particularly unusual conjugation pattern compared to other verbs. Here are the different forms of do: do: Base/infinitive; used for present tense except with third person singular subjects (other than the singular they, which uses do regardless of whether its singular or plural). Example: I do my homework as soon as I get home. does: Used for third person singular present tense (other than singular they). Example: She does her homework as soon as she gets home. did: past tense Example: She did her homework as soon as she got home. done: past participle Example: She had done homework for three hours after she got home. doing: present participle and gerund Example: She is doing her homework. The forms do, does, and did are also used in the negative contractions don't (do not), doesn't (does not), and didn't (did not). For example: Don't open the window. Luke doesn't know how to cook. Fortunately, the flowers didn't wither. Verbs similar to do The irregular verb do has a unique conjugation pattern. Some other irregular verbs that have an unusual conjugation pattern somewhat similar to do are go, be, and have. Here are some of the most common ways to use do: To perform an action or task: I need to do my homework. To create emphasis: I do like pizza. To form questions and negatives: Do you want to go to the movies? I do not like broccoli. When to Use DOES DOES is the third-person singular form of do. It is used when referring to a single person or thing. Here are some examples of when to use does: To describe an action or task performed by a single person or thing: He does his homework every night. To form questions and negatives: Does she want to go to the movies? He does not like broccoli. How to Form Questions with DO and DOES To form a question with do or does, simply invert the subject and the verb. Here are some examples: Do you like ice cream? Does she play tennis? How to Form Negative Sentences with DO and DOES To form a negative sentence with do or does, add not after the verb. Here are some examples: I do not want to go to the party. He does not like spicy food. Do vs. Does: Singular vs. Plural When it comes to using do and does, it's important to understand when to use each one based on whether the subject is singular or plural. Here are some guidelines to keep in mind: Using Do vs. Does with Singular Subjects When the subject of a sentence is singular (such as he, she, or it), you should use does instead of do. For example: He does his homework every night. She does not like to eat broccoli. It does not rain very often in this part of the country. Using Do vs. Does with Plural Subjects When the subject of a sentence is plural (such as they or we), you should use do instead of does. For example: They do their best work in the morning. We do not always agree on everything. You do not have to come if you don't want to. It's important to note that there are some exceptions to these rules. For example, in imperative sentences (commands or requests), you should always use do regardless of whether the subject is singular or plural. For example: Do your homework before you go outside. Don't touch that hot stove! Do vs. Does: Third Person Singular Using Do vs. Does with Third Person Singular Subjects When it comes to using do and does with third-person singular subjects, it's important to remember that do is used with all other pronouns, while does is used with the third-person singular pronoun. For example, I do my homework, but He does his homework. It's also important to note that does is the third person singular present tense version of do. How to Form Questions with Third Person Singular Subjects When forming questions with third-person singular subjects, it's important to remember to use does instead of do. For example, Does he like pizza? instead of Do he like pizza? Its also important to note that the word order in questions with third-person singular subjects is the same as in questions with other pronouns. For example, Does he like pizza? has the same word order as Do they like pizza? How to Form Negative Sentences with Third Person Singular Subjects When forming negative sentences with third-person singular subjects, it's important to remember to add doesn't instead of don't. For example, He doesn't like pizza instead of He don't like pizza. Its also important to note that the word order in negative sentences with third-person singular subjects is the same as in negative sentences with other pronouns. For example, He doesn't like pizza has the same word order as They don't like pizza. Do vs. Does: Commands and Imperative Sentences How to Use Do vs Does in Commands When it comes to giving commands or making requests, it is important to use the correct form of do or does depending on the subject of the sentence. The basic rule is to use do with all subjects except for the third-person singular, which requires does. For example: Do your homework. Do not forget to turn off the lights. Do you want to come with us? In contrast, we use does with the third-person singular subject: Does he like pizza? Does she have any siblings? Does it rain a lot in this city? How to Use Do vs. Does in Imperative Sentences Imperative sentences are used to give commands or make requests. In these sentences, we always use do and never does. For example: Do your chores before you go outside. Do not talk to strangers. Do your best on the exam. It is important to note that does is never used to form imperative sentences. Do vs. Does: Auxiliary Verbs Auxiliary verbs are verbs used in combination with other main verbs to add grammatical meaning to a sentence. DO is one such auxiliary verb that is used in English. How to Use Do vs. Does as Auxiliary Verbs DO is used to form questions and negatives in the present tense. For example, Do you like pizza? and I do not like broccoli. DOES, on the other hand, is used for the third person singular in the present tense. For example, She does not like mushrooms. Do and does can also be used to form questions and negatives in the past tense, but in this case, the base verb DO takes the form DID. For example, Did you go to the party? and I did not see the movie. Using Do vs. Does with Other Auxiliary Verbs Do and does can also be used with other auxiliary verbs to form different tenses, such as the present continuous and the past continuous. For example, I am doing my homework and she was doing her laundry. Do and does can also be used to form negatives and questions in the present perfect tense. For example, I have not done my homework yet and Have you done your laundry? In conclusion, Do and does are important auxiliary verbs in English that are used to form questions, negatives, and different tenses. By understanding how to use them correctly, you can improve your English language skills and communicate more effectively. Do vs. Does: Infinitives and Gerunds How to Use Do vs. Does with Infinitives When using infinitives with do and does, it is important to remember that DO is the base form of the verb, while DOES is the third-person singular form. Here are some examples: I do my homework every day. She does her laundry on Sundays. In both of these sentences, do and does are followed by the infinitive form of the verb. This is because the infinitive is used to express an action that has not yet happened but will happen in the future. How to Use Do vs. Does with Gerunds When using gerunds with do and does, it is important to remember that both DO and DOES are followed by the -ing form of the verb. Here are some examples: I enjoy doing crossword puzzles. She hates doing the dishes. In both of these sentences, do and does are followed by the gerund form of the verb. This is because the gerund is used to express an action that is happening right now or has already happened in the past. It is also important to note that do and does can be used with both infinitives and gerunds to express different meanings. For example: I do my best to help others. (infinitive) She does her own thing. no matter what others say. (gerund) In these sentences, do and does are used to express different meanings depending on whether they are followed by an infinitive or a gerund. Do vs. Does: Past Tense and Past Participle Using Do vs. Does in Past Tense In the past tense, the verb do changes to did for all subjects. On the other hand, does remains unchanged in the third-person singular present tense. Here are some examples: I did my homework yesterday. You did a great job on the presentation. He did not attend the meeting. She does not like spicy food. The team does well in this stadium. Using Do vs. Does in Past Participle In the past participle, the verb do changes to done. Here are some examples: I have done my best to help you. You should have done your research before making a decision. He has not done anything productive all day. She does not have any work done yet. It is important to note that does does not have a past participle form. Therefore, it is not used in past participle constructions. Conclusion: In conclusion, the difference between do and does is simple. Do is used in all persons except for the third person singular, where does is used. Its important to use the correct form of the verb to ensure that your sentence is grammatically correct and easy to understand.
