Rowe-Clark is named after John Rowe, the former chairman and CEO of Exelon, and his wife Jeanne and Frank Clark, the former chairman and CEO of Commonwealth Edison who became president of the Chicago Board of Education in 2015, and his wife Vera:[1] Rowe and Exelon both donated $2 million to open the school, and Clark also donated.[2] Its founding principal was Joe Tenbusch.[3] Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy is rated a 2 out of 10 by GreatSchools.org, a national school quality information site.[4] GreatSchools' Summary Rating is based on four of the school's themed ratings: the Test Score Rating, Student or Academic Progress Rating, College Readiness Rating, and Equity Rating and flags for discipline and attendance disparities at a school. Rowe-Clark's curriculum is intensive and college-preparatory, with each student taking the equivalent of eight years of math, six years of English, four years of lab sciences, and four years of social sciences.[1] Rowe-Clark is a Level 1 school, based on CPS school quality rankings. From its opening until 2014, Joe Tenbusch served as Rowe-Clark principal. From 2014 until 2018, Brenda Cora served as principal of Rowe-Clark. In August 2020, Miracle Moss-McMorris became principal of Rowe-Clark. Prior to that, Moss-McMorris previously served as assistant principal and dean of students.[5] Rowe-Clark is a member of the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) and the Noble League Athletic Conference. The school's sport teams are named the Masai Lion. ^ a b Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy School History ^ Ameet Sachdev, "Chicago school board's new head brings business, political experience", Chicago Tribune, July 16, 2015. ^ Chad Halcom "Ross-led charter management group aims to improve Jalen Rose academy", Crain's Detroit Business, June 16, 2013. ^ "Best High Schools in Chicago, IL | GreatSchools". In 2011, 100% of our first graduating seniors were accepted into different colleges. Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy was named for the generosity of John and Jeanne Rowe and Frank and Vera Clark along with the gracious support of Exelon. Their commitment to high quality education is astounding. The Rowes and Clarks are actively involved at Rowe-Clark, often attending school wide activities, sporting events, and student led town hall performances and class discussions. Each year, more than half of the sophomore class studies in summer programs at the University of Michigan, the University of Arizona, Stanford, and many more. Rowe-Clark graduates are attending schools from the University of Illinois, UIC, Pomona, Carleton, and many more. And, most importantly, every day 580 hard working students walk through the doors of Rowe-Clark ready to do the work necessary to make their dreams, and their families' dreams for them, come true. Our students engage in a rigorous, four-year college preparatory curriculum preparing them for college success. Every Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy student takes the equivalent of eight years of Math, six years of English, four years of lab sciences, and four years of social sciences. We also proudly offer intensive instruction in a foreign language, AP courses, physical education, and a host of electives to enhance our student's educational experience. Our main goal is to prepare all students to graduate from the college of their choice through a laser focus on academic excellence and a whole lot of hard work. In 2003, I earned my Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from Lewis University in Romeoville, IL. I continued my education at Chicago State University, earning a Master of Science in Education in Curriculum & Instructional Leadership. In 2014, I began my work at Noble as the Dean of Students at Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy. I proudly served in this position for three years before being promoted to the Director of Student Support. Two years later, I became the Assistant Principal of Culture, where I directly managed the Dean of Students and Dean of Discipline. In 2021, I proudly sat in the seat as the Principal of Rowe-Clark Math & Science Academy. I am a mother of three beautiful girls. One of my children graduated from Rowe-Clark in 2021 and is attending Oregon University on an academic and athletic scholarship. I am passionate about the work I do daily at home and on my job, demonstrating this through my commitment to each. I firmly believe that children cannot be what they do not see. As a principal, co-advisor, dance instructor, cheerleading coach, and mother, I constantly remind my students and children that having a seat at the table to create change is essential. I am excited and dedicated to continuing this work as I leave a small imprint on future leaders. I remind my students and colleagues daily they are expected to "lead from the front and not the back."
