Opinions expressed by Entrepreneur contributors are their own. Typically, when we discuss social media networks, it's in regard to marketing our businesses, engaging with our target markets or some other business-related use. Instagram, while effective for marketing in some situations, serves as a source of something every entrepreneur can never have enough of -- inspiration. Richard Branson | Timothy Sykes | Instagram Being able to peek into the daily lives of successful individuals through images and 15-second video clips can provide you with constant inspiration as well as give you that extra motivation when you feel exhausted or frustrated. You can even think outside the box and copy their strategies to make money with Instagram yourself! Related: 6 Ways To Get 'Instareults' to Grow Your Instagram Account Here are eight profiles that I recommend every entrepreneur follow and learn from. Branson (@richardbranson) is an individual that every entrepreneur looks up to -- he is highly successful, constantly innovating and always having fun. He updates his Instagram profile with a healthy mix of motivational quotes, personal travels and adventure, as well as business related activities. Does Branson travel to exotic locations and live a life full of luxuries? Yes, but he also works extremely hard -- and his high energy is summed up well with this quote: "To stand still today is to go backwards -- and quickly." 2. Pete Cashmore As the founder and CEO of Mashable, you would assume that Cashmore (@petecashmore) would have an extremely creative Instagram account -- and he does. The pictures that are posted don't feel staged and they aren't trying to sell the viewer anything. They paint a real picture of what the day-to-day life of a successful CEO is like. There are pictures taken while out and about, a few selfies and let's not forget about food pictures -- the images closely resemble what the average Instagram user posts, except the locations are more exotic and the food is more expensive. 3. Mark Cuban It seems like Cuban (@mcuban) makes every entrepreneur list, and rightfully so. He is extremely successful and someone that entrepreneurs look up to. I included his Instagram profile on this list for one main reason though, and that is to show you that a work-life balance is possible, even for the busiest entrepreneurs. A quick look at Cuban's Instagram will reveal pictures at business functions, at the gym and with his family. This is proof that there is always time for health and fitness as well as family -- it just takes dedication and impeccable time management. 4. Timothy Sykes Timothy Sykes (@timothysykes) is a penny stock expert that turned $12,415 into more than $4.2 million and now teaches his strategy to students all over the world. He is also a fellow Entrepreneur.com contributor and happens to have an extremely popular Instagram account. Sykes takes pictures of his travels around the world. He is a great example of living the dream. He took his passion and what he was good at -- trading penny stocks -- and turned it into a successful business. Look at Sykes pictures and know that you can have the same if you apply yourself and aren't afraid of hard work. Related: 3 Other Social Media Platforms You Should Consider 5. GapYearEscape.com This is an account owned by the entrepreneur behind the website GapYearEscape.com (@gapyeareescape). Amar, who has been traveling the world since 2009. He shares images from his world travels and posts a good mix of breathtaking scenery as well as shots of him partaking in adventure. While some Instagram pages can be construed as straight bragging, this account isn't a boasting account, it's just inspiring. It serves as great motivation to those that are truly intrigued by the possibilities of traveling the world. 6. Zig Ziglar I'm a huge fan of motivational quotes -- and Ziglar's (@thezigzlgar) Instagram profile is a constant source of new ones that I haven't seen before and old classics that still provide inspiration every single time I read them. By following this Instagram account you will see a steady flow of motivational quotes that can help inspire you along your entrepreneurial journey. While these motivational quotes can provide personal inspiration, don't keep them to yourself -- share them with your team and inspire them as well. A photo posted by Zig Ziglar (@thezigzlgar) on Apr 27, 2015 at 8:55pm PDT 7. Dennis Crowley One quick look at Crowley's (@denniscrowley) Instagram would lead many to believe it was an account belonging to an active outdoorsman that loved to play golf and participate in any physical activity, and not the founder of Foursquare. Crowley's pictures are inspirational because you get the sense that he is just one of the guys. Billionaire entrepreneurs are just like everyone else -- the only difference is they put in the hard work and didn't quit, no matter what obstacles were thrown in their way. 8. Entrepreneur Magazine You already read Entrepreneur.com, and you should also follow Entrepreneur's Twitter account -- why not also follow the number-one source of entrepreneurial insight's Instagram account (@entrepreneur) as well? Along with great quotes and motivational images, the account also features behind-the-scenes images and video clips of some of the most successful and brilliant entrepreneurs while in the company's office for interviews. Expect some interactive contests as well, like May's Photo-a-Day Challenge, currently featured. Related: The Modern Storefront: What Instagram Could Mean for Your Business The thing that makes Instagram so engaging is the constant flow of photos -- of your cousin's chihuahua or the purple mountain majesties -- that show up on your timeline whenever you open the app. But how do you find all of that great content in the first place? There are several easy ways. Getting started: find your Instagram friends When you start your account, Instagram encourages you to connect with people you already know. For example, if you set up Instagram using your Facebook login, the app automatically suggests Facebook friends for you to follow. At any time, however, you can upload your phone contacts to Instagram. From the main screen of the app, click on the profile button in the lower-right corner, then the three-bar button in the upper-right corner. From the menu that pops up, choose "Discover People." When you allow Instagram to access your contacts, the app finds anyone on your list who has an Instagram account. Simply go through the suggestions and hit "Follow" for anyone whose updates you'd like to see. If you're not sure about someone, click on their avatar to look over their photos first. As you follow and interact with more people, this feature will suggest other accounts that you might like (for instance, people who are friends of your friends). Using the Instagram Explore feature The Explore feature is a screen of images and videos that Instagram chooses based on factors such as overall popularity, your own location, and things you've previously liked. If you're looking for accounts to follow and would rather not give Instagram access to your contacts, this is a good alternative. It's easy to do. From the home screen of the Instagram app, click on the magnifying glass icon on the bottom row. From there, you can find plenty of new accounts to follow. If you tap on the search bar at the top of the Explore page, you can either type in specific accounts to follow or look through the three tabs that appear under the search bar for more ideas. The person icon suggests accounts you might like, including celebrities such as LeBron James, or things relevant to your location, like nearby news outlets or concert venues. The hashtag (#) icon allows you to search for topics you want to see. Many Instagram users include hashtags in their posts to make them easier to find (for example, by tagging a picture of their Saturday-morning waffles and eggs with #brunch). You can search for and follow hashtags just like accounts. When you search, Instagram suggests related hashtags to help you find even more of what you're looking for. For example, if a birdwatcher from Texas searches for #birdsoftexas, more than 16,000 posts appear. But the suggested hashtags have even more reach, including #best_birds_of_ig (862,000) and #birdphotography (3.9 million). Often, a couple of simple searches will lead you to the best hashtags to follow for your interests. Finally, the map pin icon allows you to search by location, which is enabled by Instagram's GPS tagging feature. The default is for posts close to your current location, but you can also enter search terms to find landmarks, vacation spots, or even favorite restaurants or state parks. Keep finding great new Instagram accounts and hashtags As you use the app, your favorite accounts will likely attract interesting comments from other users and include lots of relevant hashtags you might want to follow. Instagram can seem quite repetitive. And if you are feeling stuck, it's not a very inspirational place to be, as numerous selfies and baby photos populate your feed. Here are 20 accounts that will take you out of your Instagram rut. Photo source 1. misvincent Melissa Vincent shows her dreamy version of Mississippi and nearby places through her stunning photos of flowers, wildlife and sunset panoramas. Her account is the perfect place to take a break from everyday routine and get lost in her beautiful photos. Photo source 2. elisabetherin Erin is a part-time teacher who has a knack for capturing the beauty of her Southern Oregon home. Her frequent photos of the moody coastline and sunlit forests are enough to make any visitor swoon. Photo source 3. jacnor Jacqueline is an artist who has an eye for capturing unique angles in the world around her. Mixed with her original, geometric art pieces, this is an account you will return to again and again when you are in need of a fresh dose of inspiration. Photo source 4. ireneky Irene's clean photo aesthetic and penchant for brightening up her space with flowers and potted plants makes her photos instantly appealing. Her account is filled with simple, beautiful shots and is perfect for perusing after a long hard work day. Photo source 5. laurenadavison Lauren's account is appealing and soothing at the same time with its neutral color palette and beautiful composition. Whether she is capturing people or the rugged California coastline, it's hard to draw your eyes away once you arrive at her page. Photo source 6. adrianasinke Adriana's photos are filled with large open spaces, often of her home in Vancouver B.C. and her account is the perfect place to come to feel calm and collected. Photo source 7. able ground Vanessa Knight's feed is instantly grounding with its beautiful gems, including its richly-hue crystals. Her photos are the perfect break from all the other clutter that crowd your social media feeds. Photo source 8. jimmy Marbie's feed is sure to calm any frazzled mind with vibrant pops of color from photos of his home of the City of Angles. Lots of blue skies and beach panoramas guaranteed. Photo source 9. sheila gim Sheila Gim is a master at clean, simple photos that will make you want to browse her feed over and over again.
