From the 2020 reviews of Document Storage and Document Management systems, CCH Access Document from Wolters Kluwer is well suited for accounting firms of any size. While users will experience greater functionality when used with other Wolters Kluwer applications, CCH Access Document can also be used as a stand-alone document management application. CCH Access Document is a cloud-based application that includes a mobile app that allows users to access and manage all documents from their smart phone or tablet. (For those looking for an on-premise solution, CCH ProSystem fx Document is available from Wolters Kluwer as well.) The CCH Access Document dashboard is completely customizable, and users are able to add up to six document panes to the home page for easy document access. All documents stored in CCH Access Document are stored in their native file format with an option to create a PDF of any document for security purposes. Custom folders can be easily created for each client, and users are able to create a folder template for expedited folder setup. The dashboard also displays a list of all currently checked-out files as well as a list of recently accessed files. Accessing a file is easy using the tabs found in Document Central. Users can also add desktop shortcuts to Document Central that will point directly to a stored file, or a file hyperlink can be copied, with the option of inserting the link into another document. CCH Access Document offers excellent management tools for accounting firms, including easy document lookup, document check-in and check-out, file versioning, direct editing of any document, and a file overdue notification which alerts users if a file is checked out longer than scheduled. Firm managers can also create and set a document retention policy that can be used firm-wide. Authorized users will always be able to view exactly where a file is at any time, and good search options enable users to search for documents using a client name, file name, document name, keyword, document class or subclass in the search process. During the product setup process, managers can establish file naming conventions, with the ability to add classes or subclasses to documents as well. Each new user is automatically subscribed to a pre-defined folder template, users are able to create additional templates as desired. Once a document has been uploaded to a folder, the folder template cannot be changed. CCH Access Document also offers complete audit trail functionality in the application, displaying which documents have been accessed as well as any changes that were made. The biggest drawback to CCH Access Document is the lack of a scanning option, but users can integrate the application with CCH ProSystem fx Scan if scanning a document is necessary. Scanned documents can be imported directly into the application. For secure sharing of documents with clients, users will need to subscribe to CCH Access Portal, which offers bi-directional file sharing capability, with users able to share to a client portal directly from CCH Access Document. Users can also publish a file to the portal if desired. Users can add new portal users, edit an existing user, or delete a portal user as needed. CCH Access Document includes 256-bit Secure Socket Layer encryption, with password-protected access. All files stored in CCH Access Document are encrypted immediately, remaining that way during both storage and transmission, and all files are backed up on a daily basis. In addition, any documents uploaded to CCH Access Document are scanned for viruses. CCH Access Document seamlessly integrates with other CCH Access applications including CCH Access Tax, CCH Access Practice, CCH Access Portal, and CCH Access Data Insights, as well as CCH ProSystem fx applications, such as ProSystem fx Scan, ProSystem fx Tax, and ProSystem fx Engagement. The application also integrates with Microsoft applications such as Word and Excel. The product uses an Open Integration Platform for integration with third-party applications. CCH Access Document users can access the product support page, which includes product videos, a searchable knowledge base, an FAQ page, and direct access to the product help page, which includes getting started options, and help in working with files, managing files, and searching for files. Users can log in to open a support case or contact support via telephone, email, or chat. Users can also request a remote support session for more difficult issues. CCH Access Document is a cloud-accessible document storage and management application that's suitable for accounting firms of any size. CCH Access Document offers excellent integration with other Wolters Kluwer applications which include both CCH Access and CCH ProSystem fx applications. Pricing for CCH Access Document is available directly from Wolters Kluwer upon request, with add-on applications priced separately. 2020 Rating - 5 Stars Strengths: Excellent integration with other CCH Access and ProSystem fx applications Product is accessible from within tax preparation applications Includes an Open Integration Platform for integration with third-party applications Potential Limitations: Better suited for firms using other Wolters Kluwer applications Lack of a scanning option . CCH Access Document helps you streamline the management of documents including tax returns, client correspondence, employee records and email. With electronic filing and automated retention policy capabilities, your business will: Reduce costs by minimizing the need for copy machines, supplies and storage space for filing cabinets. Improve collaboration with version control and other features that ensure everyone has access to the most recent version of a document. Mitigate risk and maintain compliance with retention and audit trail functionality. Be prepared for emergencies and disasters with off-site file back-up and recovery tools. "It improved our speed and efficiency. We can pick up our laptop, go home, plug right back in and it's ready to go."Kylene Carse, CPA, Managing Partner at BWC & Associates, Inc. describes how her firm has benefitted from the mobility CCH Access™ enables and how it has modernized operations so they can offer partners and staff better work/life balance and enhance its client services. CCH Access™ Document and CCH® ProSystem fx® Document: First Year Guidance This article gives additional information about various activities for CCH Access™ Document that aren't performed every day. It provides information about those activities with links to other Knowledge Base articles or help files for further detail. If you have any questions after reviewing this information, please contact your Implementation Consultant. Use the links below to scroll to a specific section of this article. The Recycle Bin should be reviewed on a monthly basis. Do not let deleted items build up in the recycle bin over an extended period of time. The recycle bin counts against the space being used by your firm. For additional information, see our help and Knowledge Base topics below. Have you found your Class and Subclass structure to be efficient? This is a good time to review the class and subclass structure to ensure that all of items are being accounted for. You should also check to ensure that retention periods are appropriate. Document can be used to store files on non-client information, such as Human Resources or Firm Management documents. This is done by creating additional Business Units. Additional security should be configured to limit access and visibility to those Business Units and their files. See the following help files for more information. Managing business unit optionsSetting up client access groups At this point, it may be time to evaluate the usage of the Routing Queue. CCH Access has the ability to automatically route scanned files into Document. This is a service often used in conjunction with CCH® ProSystem fx® Scan. This service can be configured on each person's workstation. See the following help files and Knowledge Base articles for more information. Is the CCH Access mobile app being used by your staff to access client files? If not, you can download and install the apps from your app store. CCH Access on Apple App StoreCCH Access on Google Play Reports that should be run periodically are the Over Due Files and Checked Out Files reports to ensure all files are checked-in in a timely fashion. See our help file on Running Document Reports for more information on the reports available for Document. Additional training sessions can be beneficial to you during your first year of using CCH Access. Visit our Training and Consulting Services website for additional training opportunities and resources.If you use all of the products in CCH Access, we recommend the Integrated Workflow course. This course can be critical to ensuring your firm is using all the possible integration points within CCH Access.
